CHILDREN'S ETHNOBOTANY GARDEN

Outdoor classroom and urban birding is offered throughout the year. Children learn organic gardening and healthy eating. WBC's ethnobotany garden is dedicated to George Washington Carver and Dr. Kweku Andoh, both ethnobotanists. Ethnobotany is the scientific study of culture and plants, and the relationship that exists between people of the world and plants.

URBAN BIRDING SPONSORED BY CORNELL LAB OF ORNITHOLOGY

Through Celebrate Urban Birds WBC is working to incorporate children in San Diego's urban area as active participants in citizen science.

MISSION STATEMENT

As a non-profit multi-cultural arts organization, we are dedicated to promoting, presenting, and preserving the African and Indigenous cultures of the world through music, art, dance, education, and technology.

Our main goal is to create unity within diversity and bring various cultures together as one and teach about their culture through music, art, dance, culinary arts, anthropology, and botany.

We are located in beautiful Balboa Park in the heart of San Diego, California, down from the San Diego Zoo.
